Council for America's First Freedom

Deadline: November 15, 2011

Criteria: 9-12th grade students, essay on , "Is the free exercise of religion adequately protected in America's public schools today? Please answer this question in the following way: Select a person and/or group in your community, state or region whose present or historical rights to free exercise in the public schools are accommodated or, on the other hand, challenged by the public schools. Be specific in your description of the claim and the circumstances. (Private, parochial and home-school examples may also be utilized as illustrations of an individual or group response to First Amendment law.) Identify how this particular claim is a part of the broader narrative of the right to freedom of religion, conscience or belief in the United States. Use legal and historical analysis to analyze and evaluate this type of claim. Reference academically respected sources that give hearing to more than one side of this debate, and sources that give background on the basis for differing interpretations.
